

LIONS EYE BANK
WISCONSIN
GIVING THE GIFT OF SIGHT

2025 Annual Impact Report

A Message of Gratitude & Purpose

Dear Friends of the Lions Eye Bank of Wisconsin,

Hope is not abstract. It is created—carefully, ethically, and compassionately—through intention and action. Every day at the Lions Eye Bank of Wisconsin, hope takes form through the generosity of donors, the courage of donor families, the skill of our team, the collaboration of our partners, the dedication of our volunteers, and the unwavering commitment of a community that believes the gift of sight should be accessible to all.

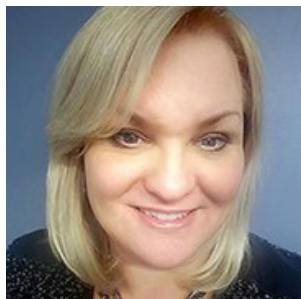

This Annual Impact Report reflects more than a year of activity; it reflects lives changed. Behind every statistic is a person who can see a loved one’s face again, return to work, or reclaim independence. Behind every successful transplant is a donor whose final act of generosity transformed loss into a lasting legacy.

For half a century, LEBW has continued to honor the sacred trust placed in us—ensuring that all who wish to donate can do so, and that all who need sight-restoring corneal transplants have access to them. We remain deeply committed to excellence, transparency, and stewardship, maximizing every gift entrusted to us. As a large, globally respected eye bank, we pride ourselves on being a highly efficient nonprofit that utilizes every gift for the purpose it was intended, and directs every possible dollar back into our mission of curing corneal blindness.

This work is not done alone. It is made possible through the steadfast support of Wisconsin Lions Clubs, healthcare partners, eye care professionals, donors, and advocates who stand beside us year after year. Your belief in this mission not only drives innovation and access, it fuels hope, healing, and inspiration — locally and far beyond our borders.

As you explore the stories and outcomes within this report, we invite you to see what we see every day: a powerful cycle of belief, where compassion becomes vision and generosity becomes possibility. Thank you for being part of this extraordinary work and for helping us bring the gift of sight to those who need it most.

With gratitude and purpose,

Stacey M. Troha,
Chief Executive Officer

PDG Lion Judy Hatz
Board Chair

Financial Overview

Thanks to the generosity of Wisconsin residents and the loyal support of contributors like you, the Lions Eye Bank of Wisconsin helped more than 1140 donors and their grieving families to provide the gift of sight to more than 1730 people—here at home, across the country, and around the world!

While metrics and data are essential for measuring our progress, the true impact of our mission is best understood through the lives it touches. To fully appreciate the work of the Lions Eye Bank of Wisconsin, we move beyond statistics to share the deeply personal, life-changing journey of donation and transplantation—stories that reflect both the selfless act of giving and the profound gratitude of receiving. Transparency is a cornerstone of the trust you place in us. While stories illuminate the “why” of our mission, data provides a clear and honest accounting of the “how.” Together, the narratives and metrics that follow offer a comprehensive view of our work in 2025, reflecting our successes, our challenges, and our unwavering commitment to maximizing the gift of sight.

A Legacy That Lives On: Roy “Caveman” Voie - A Donor Hero

Roy “Caveman” Voie was the kind of person you don’t forget.

A lifelong Wisconsinite, Roy was known for his big personality, his loyalty to friends and family, and a generosity that showed up in the way he lived every day. Whether he was coaching youth hockey, cheering on his beloved teams, or simply spending time with those he loved, Roy had a way of making people feel seen and valued.

When Roy passed away unexpectedly in 2025, his family faced an unimaginable loss. But in the midst of their grief, they made a decision rooted in compassion—one that would extend Roy’s impact far beyond his years.

Through the gift of eye donation, Roy’s legacy became something extraordinary.

At the Lions Eye Bank of Wisconsin, we often say that donation transforms loss into life. For Roy’s family, that transformation is deeply personal. In honoring his life, they chose to give others something priceless: the chance to see again, to reconnect with loved ones, and to reclaim independence.

That is the quiet power of donation.

For recipients, the return of sight is often described as a moment when the world rushes back in—colors sharpen, faces come into focus, and everyday moments become extraordinary once more. It is not just vision restored; it is possibility renewed.

Roy may have been known as “Caveman,” but his legacy reflects something profoundly human: kindness, connection, and a willingness to give without expectation.

Today, his story lives on in the lives he helped change.

At the Lions Eye Bank of Wisconsin, every cornea recovered represents a bridge between grief and healing—made possible by donors like Roy and families who say “yes” in their hardest moments.

When you support this work, you honor lives like Roy’s and support families like the Voie’s.

And you help ensure that even in loss, there is light. Thank you!

Hope Restored: Josiah Pledl

For most of his life, Josiah Pledl adapted to a world he could not fully see.

What began as vision issues in 2005 progressed into legal blindness in his left eye by 2010, caused by a degenerative condition that distorted and scarred his cornea. Everyday moments—depth perception, spatial awareness, even simple connection—became a challenge. And as a father of a young son, the weight of that loss became more personal. He wondered if he would ever experience the simple joy of playing catch with his child. Then came a moment that would change everything.

Through the generosity of an anonymous donor and their family, Josiah received a corneal transplant—one of the most successful transplant procedures in medicine, made possible only through the selfless gift of sight.

Just three days after surgery, his vision began to return.

“I woke up... and I could see out of my left eye,” he shared. No longer legally blind, Josiah now looks ahead with the possibility of full restoration—something that once felt unimaginable.

But healing, he discovered, is more than physical.

In the quiet days of recovery, Josiah wrote a letter to his donor’s family—strangers bound together by loss, generosity, and hope. It was an act of gratitude and humility, a recognition that his second chance came at a profound cost to others. That connection reshaped his understanding of humanity.

“There are really good people in the world,” he reflected.

Today, Josiah’s story is one of renewed vision—not just in sight, but in purpose. He can look forward to the moments that matter most: seeing his son clearly, engaging fully in life, and leading with clarity and compassion.

At the Lions Eye Bank of Wisconsin, stories like Josiah’s are why we exist. Each transplant represents a bridge between loss and life, between darkness and light—made possible by donors, families, and supporters who believe in something bigger than themselves.

When you support this work,
you help restore more than sight.

You help restore hope.

Thank you!

The Journey of The Gift of Sight Garden

The Journey of the Gift of Sight Garden continues to grow as a place of hope, healing, and inspiration for donor families, transplant recipients, and all who visit. This beautiful space is a testament to the dedication of our Garden Angels—especially the McFarland Lions Club, Lion Sherry Parrish, and Lion Randy Harrison—whose countless volunteer hours have helped bring the garden to life and keep it flourishing. We are equally grateful to the many generous individuals, Lions clubs, foundations, and community partners like the Bank of Sun Prairie and the Madison Area Master Gardeners Association (MAMGA), whose financial support made this vision a reality. As the garden continues to evolve, we invite others to join us in sustaining this meaningful tribute through volunteer service, sponsorship, or a charitable gift, ensuring it remains a place of comfort and reflection for generations to come.

For decades, PDG Bob Henning embodied what it means to lead with service, humility, and heart. As Chair of the Lions Eye Bank of Wisconsin Board of Directors, Bob's steady leadership, unwavering belief in our mission, and commitment to restoring sight helped shape our organization and strengthen its future. His legacy will live on not only in the countless lives touched through the gift of sight, but also through his extraordinary generosity and vision for the generations that will follow. Bob understood that the greatest legacies are those that continue serving others long after we are gone, and we are profoundly grateful for the lasting impact of his life and his example. May we all be inspired to leave the world brighter than we found it.
